GOVERNOR TERRY SANFORD (wearing sun glasses) and University President William Friday led the way into the Greensboro Memorial Coliseum on Graduation Morning: Sunday, June 4. Acting-Chancellor W. W. Pierson followed next with Emily Herring '61, who was her class' elected spokesman. After them: University Vice-President Donald B. Anderson (behind Emily) and Graduate School Dean J. A. Davis; Bishop Richard H. Baker, who delivered the baccalaureate sermon, and Rev. William Cuttre of Greensboro's First Presbyterian Church. Miss Gertrude Caraway (hidden) and her honorary degree escort, Miss Jane Summerell, came next; then Mrs. O. Max Gardner and her honorary degree escort, Miss Louise Alexander; then Dr. Dorothy Wolff (behind Miss Alex) and her honorary degree escort, Dr. Ruth Collings. Dr. John Bridgers, faculty marshal, brings up the rear on this photograph, but behind him in actuality came the members of the faculty. Graduation Day seldom passes without "a hitch;" this year's was no exception. Miss Alex got this far without anyone's realizing that she had not received a cap-and-gown. Registrar Hoyt Price rescued the situation: by the time that Miss Alex marched onto the coliseum floor, she was academically gowned.

THE ALUMNAE NEWS is published four times a year (October, January, April, and July) by the Alumnae Association of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro. THE LEGISLATORS have gone home from Raleigh, and on June 29th President Bill Friday reported to the University Faculties concerning the appropriations which were authorized before the General Assembly's adjournment. Happily he could report that "the requests of the University for additional support for the 1961/63 biennium received favorable consideration." Operating appropriations were increased, and receipts from increased tuition rates ("an increase to which the University reluctantly acceded") will make additional funds available. A little less than half of the total increase is in the "A" budget area, providing for the continuation of those things that are presently being done at the present level of quality. The remainder of the increase is in the "B", or betterment, budget; and of this amount more than half will be used for faculty salary increases. This was the first priority in the University's request, and it is satisfied in full. To offset the effect of the tuition increase, ($25 for in-state students; $100 for out-of-staters) on the needy student, funds from the increased tuition were set aside to increase each scholarship awarded in 1960/61 to North Carolina students by $25.00. The General Assembly approved Capital Improvement projects mounting to more than 15 million dollars. A little more than 2 million of this is in a legislative bond issue and is assured. The remainder is included in a bond issue that can be authorized only by vote of the people in an election that will be held, presumably, in the fall. Items which have been included for the Woman's College are: air conditioning the library, addition to the Nursery School, one-half the cost of dormitory space for 640 women, Avco-Music Building addition, extensive dormitory renovations, dining hall improvements, addition to swimming pool (one-half cost), two home management houses, the widening of West Drive, and campus utilities. If the bond vote is not an affirmative one, these things and the major part of the University's Capital Improvements program will not be accomplished. The list itself indicates the urgent necessity for approval.

To talk a little more about money . . . alumni giving to alma mater on a national level continued its upward trend in 1959/60, according to a report released last week by the American Alumni Council. BUT alumnae giving to the Woman's College continued on its downward trend. As if this weren't embarrassing and disturbing enough to us who continuously "beat the drum," we ran a poor third to Douglass College (in New Jersey) and to Winthrop College (in South Carolina) among "Public Women's Colleges" in the national report. Georgia State College for Women did report less money than we, but their constituency numbers 10,000 fewer than ours. 10.6% of us alumnae contributed; 50.3% of Douglass' did, 22.5% of Winthrop's did, and 11.1% of Georgia's did. Let's face it: the "Second to None" phrase which we toss around about the Woman's College surely falls flat when one considers the Alumnae Fund. Money-raising authorities maintain that talking about what similar colleges do in an effort to shame one's alumnae into giving is wrong. Maybe so, but we drum-beaters are tired of sharing the collective shame alone. Who knows? Maybe shame will help; nothing else seems to. Something is going to be done about our plight, and rest assured that you'll be hearing about it.

The Ingredients of a Tradition

A graduation exercise is a traditional part of an academic year.

A second-year of staging in the City's memorial coliseum does not, yet, qualify "the place" as a traditional one.

But, regardless of place or time, the ingredients . . .
the integral parts and props . . .

are the same:

the platform with its "party" of speakers and official rewarders the diploma-table laden with rectangles which represent a culmination and a beginning

the basket of flowers which invariably seem to reflect the season's warmth the choir with its musical blessing

the faculty who have administered the education

the graduates who have taken the education

the parents who have fostered and financed the education and the white-frocked daisy-chain bearers whose flowery burden, though left outside,

symbolically links time-past with time-present on a day which honors preparation for time-future.

"...these things they wish spoken of"

by Emily Herring

MY CLASSMATES need no spokesman to commend them to you. Their lives and records speak well of the years we have enjoyed and weathered together. Each has her own philosophy of what her education has been and what her college was about. We have no prophet among us who comes to promise that our success story has already been written for the future. While we are all experiencing doubts about tomorrow, here, too, each speaks for herself.

Yet there are, on this day of graduation, things which the Class of 1961 wishes to say before this gathering of college officials, faculty, parents, and friends. It is my privilege to represent my classmates in this manner and my purpose to express, as best I could anticipate, these things they wish spoken of. In the long and silent ride home today, the quietness of the late afternoon, and the company of family, each shall come herself to tell you something of the experience. We are impressed with the solemnity and the joy of this occasion and are pleased that we may share it with those who have cared the most.

Each capped and gowned senior has something in common with the students to her left and right, and each is also distinguished for her differences. You in the gowns of your professions, as officials, faculty, parents, and friends also have something in common. Your bond has been that you have cared about our lives and educations. Each of you at sometime has been more important than the other; each has been dependent on the other so that together you have been responsible in large measure for the graduation of at least one of these young women. It seems most appropriate that as you bear witness to this graduation, the day bears witness to your coming together.

Seated on the platform are the men and women who help determine the purpose of this university. From the earliest history of this college, there were pioneers and leaders in women's education who felt in this that there was a unique mission. Today we have the continuing belief and direction vested in these officials. To many college freshmen, there were names without faces, authorities who seemed only remotely associated with our lives, and then, only in delinquency. Today we know them for the blood, sweat, and tears they have given in service to the university. They are closely allied with the faculty in purpose, for they are all part of the college family. In the administration of this college, they are determining the kind of growth and direction of the living institution. In this institution and in this graduating class, we have looked to them for continued awareness of the needs of the Woman's College, experiencing with all institutions of education the growing pains of a rapidly increasing student enrollment. They are charged with the responsibility of bringing the faculty and students together in an atmosphere distinguished by its climate of learning, and so we all must demand and recognize quality in leadership of American colleges and universities.

Here in the academic gowns of color and honor are the men and women who have been teachers, scholars, examples, and inspirations, our best critics. To each of us there is a special member of this faculty unlike all others for his or her influence on our educations, for the interest in our interests, for the example of being teachers, for the encouragement to become scholars, for the integrity of their personal and professional lives which have lifted us above discouragement and disillusionment into the realm of their own ideals. We proudly introduce them to parents and friends, saying: "Here is the teacher who taught me that life is in history. Here the scientist who demanded that I prove rather than assume. Here the supervisor who took me into the classroom as a student teacher. Here the philosopher who taught me to explore for myself. Here the artist who taught me to be a critic of my own work."

The experience of this comradeship has been ours and must be for every student if she is to transcribe class notes into history, the formula into the experiment, the question into a discussion, the inspiration into the creation. It is a comradeship of the professional and non-professional, the scholar and the student, as in the classroom, the library, the residence halls, we learned to think independently and to share our discoveries. With this faculty rests the reputation of the College. This class, this college, this nation owes a debt to the classroom teacher, and the value of learning is more costly and imperishable than the world has yet to measure. Let it not go unpaid and let it not go undeserved.

To the parents of the 1961 graduates we commit these memories. Learning was of the home as well as in the university: the two most important influences in our lives. We have learned from each that which we could not, did not learn from the other. We have brought the learning of each to the other, hoping to effect a balance of ideas which form the text of our instruction and lead us to the independence of a critic. Some of our ideas from home did not seem to "fit in" at the university. Some from the university were strange to the home. Sometimes we were too fresh in our learning and it did not wear well like an old friend. And sometimes you needed to hear us, for we were establishing ourselves, daring to adventure and in the adventure, we learned, as well we must, the value of reason and logic and the spirit of the inquiring mind. What we are now is a product of the home and university and of what we made ourselves. As Frost has written: "They would not find me changed from him they knew—only more sure of all I thought was true."

In September of 1957 we remember that we left the security of home and parents for that first, frightening insecurity of being at a strange place among strange people. We left high school traditions and popularity symbols to become one among many students like and unlike ourselves. Now our places at the Woman's College are as secured and familiar as they were at home, and we are again to go to new places. You realize that soon your daughter will be a wife, a teacher, a secretary, a home economist, and that your visits will again be measured in weekends and holidays, that letters will keep you in touch, and that 21 years seem to symbolize independence and adulthood you wanted for us, but were not quite ready to realize. In one hand we have the birthright of our family heritage; soon in the other we shall receive the diploma of our graduation which we hope we ourselves have earned. You have paid for these years more than from the checkbook, for you have watched us come of age in an age characterized by new beginnings — in science, in politics, in national and world change. We were a part of that same spirit launching the first man into space, the youngest administration in the history of the nation's politics, the spirit of the young men and women who are experimentors and innovators and who are going to blend their ideas and leadership with the best which is of the past and present. You see now the administration and the faculty of this college which has helped to shape this phase of our growth and learning. Look closely at them and at us, for we are all spokesmen of this institution and representative of American colleges and universities. You, too, must be critics and you must know the purpose of a university. If you like what you see, make sure that it is the best. If you do not like what you see, which of us has been in error, for we came from you to them and now reach a point of departure in the areas we have chosen to explore?

As I would wish to say to my own parents, so I feel my classmates wish to say: "In gratitude for the sacrifices you have made for our gains, and in recognition of the concern and caring you have for us, we dedicate the diplomas we shall soon receive to the parents of the Class of 1961."

In ending, I wish to speak of my classmates, those who have been closest in sharing the experiences of these years. All of you know something about some of us. As a class we are small in number and have wanted to stand tall. To each of us being an individual and a student has meant something different. To all of us our years have meant that we most likely had at least one un-sat registered at mid-semester, that we advised freshmen which courses to take and which to avoid, complained at least once about everything, and more times than we have admitted, felt a personal fondness for the place which led us to all of this. And we have felt the unfathomed seriousness of our own efforts, the expectations of family and faculty, the discipline it required of us, the conflicts it created, and the inner quarreling we had with ourselves and with our contacts. In the stacks and carrels of the library we have known the excitement and fatigue of study. In the soda shop and residence halls we have discussed issues from the sublime to the ridiculous. We have disagreed among ourselves, and we have realized that at our best, principles we believed in must rise above personality. We have found times and places to be alone and lonely, to know the heat of our own souls and passions. And we have embraced at our own choosing the principles and purposes which in some manner bound us to the continent of our community, nation, and world.

Now some of us are restless to be out and about the business we have been trained in; others impatient to pursue their own pilgrimage; others anxious to test the reality of a philosophy; others, already are in the future.

We have things to do and we must be about them. Our future homes wait upon us; our employers have a contract to be filled; graduate schools want to see if our work is as good as our records. "We cannot rest from travel. We shall drink life to the lees." With the unreality of this ending and the uncertainty of tomorrow, we brace ourselves with the independence of what we have become. We stand, foot upon another doorstep to continue our pilgrimage to new places, new friends, new ideas. Let us go then, as with the poet: "We shall not cease from exploration,/ And the end of all our exploring/ Will be to arrive where we started/ And know the place for the first time . . . To make an end is to make a beginning. The end is where we start from." Though many graduations have borne witness to the commencing of its seniors, may the Class of 1961 determine to be distinguished for its spirit of the age and cast an image of courage and conviction upon the encounters of our lives and adventures.

EMILY HERRING was elected by her '61 classmates as their graduation spokesman and as their everlasting president. A native of Columbus in Georgia, an English major, and a member of Golden Chain, she served as president of Student Government during the 1960-61 session.

THE RECIPIENTS of honorary degrees from the Woman's College are selected according to stipulated criteria; character; eminent achievements in scholarship or high distinction in public affairs; personal identification with the College, specific services to the State or the College in the public interest, or identification with the region through activities recognized as important in the educational world; and the appropriateness of the proposed degree from the College at a given time.

Members of the faculty are invited annually to submit names of possible recipients to the Committee on Honorary Degrees. After screening and sorting and consulting, the College Committee submits the names of candidates to the University Board's Committee on Honorary Degrees for their approval. This committee, in turn, reports to the Board of Trustees. Finally, the names are submitted for the approval of the Woman's College Faculty Council.

Three women received honorary degrees at this year's graduating exercises: Miss Gertrude Caraway, Mrs. O. Max Gardner, and Dr. Dorothy Wolfe. With only two exceptions (Dr. Frank Porter Graham and Dr. Walter Clinton Jackson), all of the College's honorary degrees have been awarded to women.

Honorary Degree Recipients

GERTRUDE SPRAGUE CARRAWAY, native of New Bern, graduate of the Woman's College, journalist and editor, author of historical essays, former President of the Daughters of the American Revolution, former member of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina—has been a civic leader of versatile interests in benefit of the public good, the beautification of her beloved city, the preservation or restoration of historical monuments such as the Tryon Palace. For distinction in public service, for writings and editorials of literary merit and historical value, Miss Caraway, by vote of the Faculty and that of the Trustees of the University of North Carolina, I (the Chancellor) confer upon you the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters with all its rights and privileges.

FAY WEBB GARDNER, born in Shelby, wife of Governor Gardner, popularly known as the "first lady of North Carolina" long after her husband's term had expired, also entitled as "Citizen-at-large," has been benefactor of many charitable, cultural, and educational institutions and agencies. Her "interests in North Carolina have encompassed the State." Her gracious manner and sympathy and poise have endeared her to friends and to many not of her acquaintance. For your distinguished public and humanitarian services, Mrs. Gardner, by vote of the Faculty and that of the Trustees of the University of North Carolina, I confer upon you the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters with all its rights and privileges.

DOROTHY WOLFF, native of Pueblo, Colorado, author, teacher, one-time member of the faculty of the Woman's College, student of anatomy and a renowned specialist on the ear, has been identified with hospitals and medical schools such as those at Johns Hopkins, Washington, and Harvard Universities. At present she is research pathologist at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Nose Hospital. She is joint author of two lengthy books and either sole or joint author of some twenty-eight scientific articles or monographs. For distinction in research contributions to medical science and to the alleviation of deafness, by vote of the Faculty and that of the Trustees of the University of North Carolina, I confer upon you, Dr. Wolff, the honorary degree of Doctor of Science with all its rights and privileges.

191 years' worth of INFLUENCE

THE LADIES listed above have been members of the faculty and staff of the Woman's College for the number of years noted on their right. Their retirement began at the end of the academic year.

To estimate what their influence has been is humanly impossible; to evaluate fully and accurately their contributions, individually and collectively, would take "a board meeting" of us all.

Each has had a part in some of our lives. Individuals among them have influenced individuals among us. Because of this, each of us remembers them in different ways and for varying reasons. For THE ALUMNAE NEWS to try to tell its readers what these teachers and friends have meant, do mean, and will continue to mean to them and to the Woman's College is really unnecessary. Remembrance is a personal thing.

What I shall always remember may or may not be at all meaningful to you. I remember Miss Coldwell, not as a teacher but as a gardener . . . in her growing plot on McIver Street at the Nursery School entrance to the campus, just down the hill from where I had an apartment for four years. I remember Mrs. Funderburk as Nancy Beam's mama, as a counselor, as a loyal alumna, as Miss Grogan's good friend. I remember Miss Harrell as the Commercial Class' patient and very kind sponsor and adviser; her abiding interest and her wanting-to-have-everything-just-right have seemed all important in each one-year-class' feeling a closeness to the College which is basically oriented for four-year-classes. I remember Miss Jastrow because she was my first student-help "boss;" cataloguing her thousands of slides with colored triangular markings was my first self-help assignment. I remember Miss Largent and her way with American history, her "continuity from the beginning-to-the-present" questions, her not calling on you in class if you did not look her straight in the eye to signify that you were prepared to be called on, her patience with Golden Chain, her making baby booties for "her girls in the Class of '44," her kindness in sharing her alumnae news notes and baby pictures and new addresses with us in the Alumnae Office. I remember, as through the years I have worked among the books, Miss Sampson's suddenly appearing from and disappearing to the "innards" of the Library; her job. I was never quite sure about, but I figured it had involvement with the card catalogue since she was mostly in that locale.

Although it is impossible to verbalize each alumna's memories and her feelings of gratitude as she thinks about these ladies, it is on these memories and feelings that we say to them for ourselves and for the College: Thank you so very much and every good wish for happiness, rest, and good health.

B. P.

THE ALUMNAE SERVICE AWARD is presented to alumnae of the Woman's College who by their unselfish and faithful service have made outstanding contributions to the advancement of the College. The award is given in such years as a qualified nominee is presented. An Alumnae Service Award Committee, appointed by the president of the Alumnae Association, receives nominations and presents them to the Board of Trustees of the Association. The Board selects the award winners. The Committee prepares the citation which is presented when the recipient is announced.

Alumnae Service Award II

May Lovelace Tomlinson

Citation

TO ONE whose life has been dedicated to service to the Consolidated University of North Carolina and to The Woman's College; whose time and energy have been given tirelessly so that the lives of others might be enriched by the beauty and culture which she so deeply appreciates:

MAY LOVELACE TOMLINSON,

it is with sincere appreciation and real pride that we present to you the second Alumnae Service Award.

Graduate of this college in 1907, hers is the longest record of service to the Board of Trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina by an alumna of the Woman's College. She was named to the Board in 1951 at the time of consolidation, and she served continuously until her retirement in 1957.

The story of this alumna cannot be told without telling the story of another favored "child" of the Alumnae Association. Our alumnae, in 1924, launched a campaign to raise funds for a project which it was felt would contribute to the College's development along every line. May Tomlinson served as the devoted chairman of the committee which spearheaded this project: the Alumnae House Building Committee.

Working ceaselessly against many odds—the depression, the death of the architect, with faith, determination and courage, she and her committee brought to fruition the dreams of this College's alumnae: our own Alumnae House. At the time of its dedication it was one of five in the United States built for alumnae specifically. This magnificent example of Southern colonial architecture, now in its silver anniversary year, has served us well. It has, indeed, as May Tomlinson so fondly hoped, "made life richer for us all, strengthened the bond between us and helped build a still greater college for women."

She served two terms as President of the Alumnae Association. And, again turning her attention to the Alumnae House, she directed its redecoration a few years ago.

Long interested in music, her efforts to create a widespread appreciation of it are well-known. She has held many state offices in the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs. Outstanding among her many services to her community is her seventeen year record as president of the High Point Community Concert Association.

In all these and in many other avenues of devoted service, May Lovelace Tomlinson has exemplified the things for which this College stands: high ideal of purpose, courageous and relentless efforts and the keen appreciation for that part of life which feeds our spirits as well as our minds. May her future long be bound with ours.

The Elected

THE RESULTS of the May election of officers of the Alumnae Association for the 1962 and 1963 term of office were declared official at the Commencement Meeting of the Association on June 3. The successful candidates are pictured here. Their official duties will begin after the next meeting of the Association, which will be in Midwinter.

Memorial Resolution

Ione Holt Grogan

THE DEATH of Miss Ione Grogan on February 5, 1961, was the occasion for hundreds of men and women whose lives she had touched to summon up remembrance of things past.

We are reminded by Henry Adams that "a teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops." For nearly half a century, Miss Grogan taught with vigor and precision. Her classroom had no walls; her interests were catholic. She estimated that, as head of the Department of Mathematics at Senior High School, she had "taught all the boys in Greensboro." These boys, many of whom are now leaders in business, in government, and in civic affairs, freely acknowledge their debt to her.

When she returned to her alma mater in 1935 as a counselor, Miss Grogan entered upon a new kind of teaching career along with a continuation of the old as a part-time member of the Department of Mathematics. Dean Harriet Elliott, who had just taken office, was inaugurating a counseling and social program the success of which would be largely dependent upon the character of those who administered it. Coit Hall — and later Weil — acquired a distinctive personality under the firm guidance of Miss Grogan. Drawing upon a rich heritage with deep roots in Rockingham County, Miss Grogan set high standards of conduct and achievement for her girls. At the same time, she found T. S. Eliot and Marcel Proust not incompatible with the Southern tradition, and she shared her enthusiasms with her students.

Her interests ran the gamut from gardening to politics to French to alumnae affairs. She served as president of the North Carolina Association of Deans of Women, of the Alumnae Association, and of the Reviewers' Club, the oldest women's literary club in the state. As a member of numerous faculty and alumnae committees, Miss Grogan, with her strong sense of continuity, was intent upon tempering innovation with tradition.

College friends recall with warm appreciation the quick wit and the fun-loving spirit of Ione Grogan of the Class of 1915. Forty years later, the great cosmic sense of Miss Grogan, the counselor and teacher, enlivened many a student show and the gatherings of the Old Guard at Commencement. Despite an accumulation of personal tragedies, she found fullness and joy in life shared with others.

To Miss Grogan, retirement in 1958 signified a change of place rather than of pace. She continued to teach—first at Curry, then at home with a full complement of private pupils. Keeping her own counsel as always, she faced the prospect of failing health with courage and equanimity. And in such a manner she died.

The measure of Ione Grogan's contribution to her College and to her State is that of the men and women who, with respect and affection, call her "wonderful teacher and friend."

Memorial Fund

AFTER Miss Grogan's death in February, the members of the residence halls counseling staff, of which she was an honored member for twenty-five years, established the Ione Holt Grogan Memorial Fund. Contributions to the fund may be sent to Mrs. Kathleen P. Hawkins, Student Aid Officer, Woman's College.

Reunions

THE REUNION LUNCHEON scene shifted this year from Coleman Gymnasium to completely-renovated Spencer Dining Hall. The reasons for the move were several; important among them, the belief that Spencer would be air-conditioned. Unfortunately we were a bit premature in this belief. Also important among the moving-reasons was the hope to have a comfortable seat for everyone. This necessitated our relying on advanced reservations. No one was overcome by the heat's being unairconditioned, but a goodly number of reunioners who came without having made reservations got pretty "heated-up" when they did not find a fistful of tickets and a collection of empty chairs waiting for them. Tempers and blood pressures subsided by Class Meeting time, though, and at Alumnae Supper time, everything was calm and cool. Reports of the Class Meetings follow.

→ The Old Guard

WITH THE PRESIDENT Ethel (Harris) Kirby '05 in the chair, the Old Guard held its 1961 Commencement meeting in the gracious setting of the North Spencer parlor. All arrangements had been carefully made by our new Faculty Sponsor, Miss Nancy White.

The secretary having resigned, the first item of business was to elect a new one. Elizabeth (Howell) Clifton '00 was elected, and, in consequence, will be the 1962 president of the Old Guard.

Miss Mereb Mossman, Dean of the College, was presented, and she gave a most interesting and informative talk on the subject: "One Day in My Office." It was gratifying to learn that good teaching is still of paramount importance at the College, and that the welfare of the individual student is still the major concern of administration and faculty alike.

EVERLASTING P R E S I D E N T Myrtle (Johnston) Hassell didn't attempt to call the meeting to order as the Class of 1911 convened the afternoon of June 3 for its 50th reunion. It would have been wasted effort.

The cool, big living room of Beatrice (Schwab) Weill, gracious perennial hostess to the class with which she spent her first two college years, resounded with "Remember?" and "What ever became of . . .?", as the reminiscing reunioneers made the most of their time together.

Welcome messages from absentees varied the gay chatter. Red roses recalled the scent of Red-and-White Commencement flowers of half a century ago. Decorum reigned only while Myrtle presented to Beatrice a token of appreciation from the assembled group: a bracelet inscribed "1911." Spirit of the occasion was voiced by Nora Carpenter: "Let's meet here again 25 years from now!"

Thirty of the 38 who graduated in 1911 are living. Seventeen—an award-winning percentage—attended the reunion. From out of the State came Jessie (Earnhardt) Christenberry, Greenville, South Carolina; Rose (Batterham) Housekeeper, Newton, New Jersey; and Minna Littmann, New Bedford, Massachusetts. The Tar Heelers on hand were Bessie (Bennett) Barnes, Bonnie Mae (Brown) Terry, Antoinette (Black) Alexander, Olivia (Burbage) Campbell, Bertha (Daniel) Cloyd, Nora Carpenter, Georgia Faison, Myrtle (Johnston) Hassell, Catherine (Jones) Pierce, Adelaide Morrow, Margaret (Pickett) Hamlin, Katherine Norfleet, Natalie Nunn, May (Vickery) Faucette, plus Mary (Jeffress) Whaley, who started with the class, and Beatrice.

FOLLOWING THE REUNION LUNCHEON and Commencement Meeting of the Alumnae Association in Spencer Dining Hall, the Class of 1929 met in the parlor of Coit Hall. Reminiscing and conversation were the order of business: thirty-two years of accomplishments, families, and careers.

Ruth Clinard presented interesting statistics on the class as a whole. And there were many questions about classmates and friends who were not in attendance. Ruth agreed to provide each of us with a list of the names and addresses of all of our classmates.

Feeling the need for increasing attendance and for more active participation in alumnae activities, we elected Margaret (Duckworth) Palmer as second vice-president to assist our class president in any capacity in which she is needed.

For many of us this was the first opportunity to attend a class reunion. Elizabeth (Crowder) Harlow of Framingham, Massachusetts, traveled the longest distance for the reunion, and Dorothy (Robertson) Pederson of Long Island, New York, traveled over 600 miles for her first visit to the campus since our graduation.

Those present for the meeting but missing at the time the photograph was made were Esther (Caviness) Hodgin, Louise (Dammenbaum) Falk, and Louise Ellis. All of the news gleaned from those present is in the '29 section of the News Notes.

Each person departed with the feeling that she was glad that she had come and that she would be back for the 1966 reunion.

Ronie Sheffield

NOTE: Two messages addressed to the '29 reunioneers arrived at the Alumnae Office too late to be transmitted to the class in meeting. One was from Mattie (Query) Esleek (220 Winston Road, Portsmouth, Virginia), whose plans to join the group had to be changed because of the prolonged illness and period of convalescence of her mother: "I will be there 'in spirit' anyhow, and I will be thinking about you." The other message was from Elizabeth Draughon (Georgetown College, Georgetown, Kentucky): "Greetings. Regret Commencement at Georgetown prevents my attending class reunion. Love and best wishes to all."

Class of 1930

THE TWENTY-EIGHT MEMBERS of the Class of 1930 present for their 31st Class Reunion assembled in Cray Hall after the Alumnae Luncheon to have a group picture taken and to hold a brief class discussion.

Greetings and a letter from our absent class president, Betty (Sloan) McAlister, were read by Sue Underhill, who presided. Messages from other absent classmates were also reported.

Margaret (McConnell) Holt, vice-president, pointed up the need for each of us to be an alert citizen, to be aware of what we can do to voice our criticism of any demoralizing statements creeping into text books and TV programs. She reminded us that the impact of as many as 100 letters to the sponsors of programs can cause them to improve their selection.

A motion was carried to respond favorably to our class president's suggestion to have a survey made of our contribution in service to the various communities in which we live. Also a suggestion was made to gather statistics on our class members such as economic status, further academic study, children, etc.

The report was made that to date in 1961, 45 members of the class had contributed a total of $266.50 to the Alumnae Fund.

Hostesses for the reunion were Mary (Lyon) Herbert, Irene Hester, Jessie (Bridges) Foster, Ruth Sikes, and Alice (Dillard) Ivey, all of Greensboro.

Second row: Waverly (Thomas) McLeod and Iris (Nelson) Cooke.

HOW BEST TO SHARE the ephemeral glow of a class reunion? Let those of us who attended assure you that something does happen that is special when class members gather on the campus — so special that we felt that more should have the chance to share it. And so we voted to have a THIRTY YEARS REUNION in 1962 even though none is called for on the reunion schedule now in effect. Each class member who was present is a voluntary member of the committee to spread the word. Each of us will be writing to a number of others soon. Thus, family and vacation plans can be made ahead for mama, or grandma, or auntie, or the mainstay of the office — whatever they call you now — to be free to travel come June 1962.

The reader is herewith invited to volunteer, also. One proposed activity in preparation for reunion is to send a questionnaire to each member of the class in the spring so that a booklet of current news items such as these contributed by those present this year can be sent out ahead of time. Please keep the College advised of your moving about during the next year.

Fay (Hine) Phillips reported that her oldest child, Harry, was graduated in May from the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia. He is to be ordained as a Presbyterian minister in August. Her daughter, Sylvia, a teacher in Norfolk, Virginia, was planning to be married to Harlan White on June 24, and they will live in Troy, New York, his hometown, where she will teach, and he will finish his degree in industrial engineering.

Evelyn Howell has retired from teaching in the Food and Nutrition area of the Woman's College School of Home Economics. She is enjoying association with faculty and former students and all of the delightful advantages of living in Greensboro and continuing as a part of the college community. She travels, also, at any and every opportunity.

Margaret (Kendrick) Horney still lives in the country near Guilford College; however, the city is encompassing them. Husband Bill is a self-employed engineer. One daughter, who is married, lives in Arlington, Virginia. Two grown sons and a daughter in junior high school complete the family membership. Margaret has worked with the Greensboro City Schools in the Library Department for the last four years. A trip to England and Scotland in 1958 was her main excitement since the last reunion. Having a son in college in Florida makes winter vacations a pleasure.

Avery (McConnell) Hood, also still a country resident, with a development at one end of the farm and a Ranch Camp, featuring horse-back riding and day and resident programs for boys and girls, on the other end, just out from Matthews, near Charlotte. Husband Dan also has a dairy and a construction concern operated from the farm. A trip last fall through Europe and the Mediterranean to visit relatives in Turkey, and participating in our daughter's plans to enter the UNC School of Nursing this fall are the especial interests, in addition to foster children, Mental Health Board, League of Women Voters, Girl Scouts, the Association of Social Workers, and similar inter-locking activities.

Iris (Nelson) Cooke has been high school librarian in Williamson since 1959. Son Jimmy, a rising senior at Carolina, is to be a student adviser, and this summer he is working in the Trinity Parish in New York City. Son Richard will enter high school in the fall. Husband Jim is with the Olin Mathieu Chemical Corporation.

Emeve (Paul) Singletary lives at 106 South Aycock Street in Greensboro. She is one of the Woman's College Nursery School teachers, and she is also a graduate student in Child Development at the College. Husband Bill is a special agent with the Kansas City Life Insurance Company. W. C., Jr. graduated from UNC this year and is getting married in August. Leith is a rising sophomore at the University, and Helen is a rising junior in high school.

Helen (Simons) Strauss has two sons: Joe, Jr., 14; and Ned, 10. She was out-going president of the Woodard Elementary P.T.A. and vice-president, incoming, of the Coon Junior High P.T.A. She is also chairman of the Wilson County Chapter of the Woman's College Alumnae Association.

Mary (Pinnix) Gamble, teacher of history at Greensboro Senior High, lives at Summerfield where she has been since finishing college. Her husband died suddenly 2½ years ago. She has taught many of her classmate's children. She spent seven weeks on the west coast last summer and attended the Democratic National Convention.

Vellie (Suggs) Eagle is vice-president of the North Central District of the Classroom Teachers' Association and a member of the AAUW. Son Eugene, Jr., who finished at the Greensboro Senior High School this year, was tapped into Torchlight, National Honor Society. A member of the Senior High Band, he made all-state band, and he will enter State College in the fall. He is also an Eagle Scout with three palms.

Waverly Gwynn (Thomas) McLeod (207 Hillcrest Avenue in Fayetteville) is teaching at the Worth Business College there. Her four sons are David, 26, who enters Carolina Medical School in September; Waverly, 21, in the US Navy and stationed aboard the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt, currently on a Mediterranean cruise; James, 18, who has completed the freshman year at East Carolina, and Jack, 15, a ninth grader.

Leisel Womble of Siler City teaches the first grade in Bennett School, and she is Girls' Auxiliary Counselor for the local Women's Missionary Union. She enjoys working in the Vacation Bible Schools each summer.

In addition to those present, we exchanged news of those absent:

Mary (Brandt) Wang, in Grant, New Mexico, has a dancing school, and her doctor husband has just completed a new clinic. Their eldest is in pre-med at Princeton; a daughter is graduating from high school and will study dancing; and a younger child is at home. Recently Mary was thrilled to have her former teacher, Miss Ruth St. Denis, visit her school and meet with each of her classes...

Helen (Comer) Pulliam is teaching in Newton. Son Ted, a senior at Newton-Conover High School, was an American Field Service Exchange Student in the summer of 1960.

Marion (Holoman) Fowler's father has been quite ill, and she has been back to North Carolina several times recently. During her visits she has seen a number of the classmates near her home.

All of us who were present decided that we have some mighty fine children and/or we are enjoying those of other people with whom we deal. Considering the feeling we had in 1932 about how decrepit ancient alumnae were, we are convinced that we have held up very well. We were glad that we had come back to the College for a visit even though we were few in number. We believe that most classmates had expected the reunion to be after thirty years, and we are looking forward to seeing each of this small, enthusiastic group, and many more at reunion time next year.

Class of 1936

THIRTY-FIVE MEMBERS of the Class of 1936 were present for our 25th Reunion. Some of the number came without reservations, and they missed the luncheon and the picture-taking, but they joined us for the afternoon get-together at the home of Carolyn Weill LeBauer (Mrs. M. L. LeBauer, 2023 St. Andrews Road).

Upon our arrival at Carolyn's, we were served lovely and delicious refreshments from a beautifully appointed table. Throughout the house arrangements of spring flowers were very outstanding.

After a brief business meeting at which time we elected Gladys Draper Seawell as chairman for the next reunion, we spent the remainder of the afternoon chatting. It was a wonderful and happy reunion!

The thirty-five of us came from all-over, and probably the one who came the farthest distance was Kent Blair Davidson, who journeyed all the way from Miami, Florida.

Absentees, we missed you! "Presentees," it was GOOD to see you, and we'll be looking forward to joining you at the College again in 1965.

Class of 1940

AFTER THE ALUMNAE LUNCHEON and Business Session, the Class of 1940 gathered in the parlor of Hinshaw Hall for its reunion meeting. Ellen Griffin, everlasting treasurer, "stood in" for Val Powell Jones who sent her regrets via a letter and a telegram. Circumstances prevented Val's coming, but she hopes to see a number of '40ers in August when she comes to Western North Carolina to pick up her son who is camping there.

Ellen extended greetings from Mr. James Painter, our class chairman, who also was unable to be with us.

Each member of the class who had contributed information about herself and her family for the reunion booklet elaborated on it. And this information was collected about those who "didn't make the booklet."

Wil (Efird) Lowe lives in Charlotte and has four children; a daughter is at St. Mary's.

Dot Coley, who is a social worker, is in the process of moving from Winston-Salem to Baltimore.

Virginia (Boger) Winget lives in Gastonia; Virginia (Hunter) Ryan, on Long Island; Virginia (Sterling) Hannah, in Hawaii where her husband is in the Air Corps.

Alta (Prine) Phelps had planned to come for the reunion, but her son was hospitalized with a broken arm.

Florence (Warren) Garrou lives at Valdese; Emma Sharpe (Avery) Jeffress is in Greensboro; Packy (Winslow) McCrary is in Florida; Marian (McNeill) Royal is back in Rowland and has three children; Patricia (Sisk) Stewart lives in Jacksonville, Florida; Dot (Brothers) Griffin, in South Carolina; Helen (Cohen) Fagelson is in Europe this summer; Dot (Dennis) Worthen lives in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Because of the graduation of her son from high school, Virginia (Ambrose) Howell could not come from Suffolk, Virginia. Lynette (Moss) Boettner sent best wishes to everyone from Huntingdon Valley, Pennsylvania.

During the luncheon Dot Lovell Appleton passed around a picture made about 1937 of Wil Efird, Patsy Jones, Nancy Ham, and Packy Winslow. It almost broke up the business session of the Alumnae Association. It was a riot!

Plans were made for the 25th Reunion in four years, and our hope is to have another booklet which will include every member of the class. Our thanks go to Nancy Ham Green, Jeannelle Armstrong Lovern, and Helen Gray Whitley Vestal for typing the material for this year's booklet.

One classmate came all the way from Oklahoma for the reunion, Faye (Joines) Martin; two from Connecticut, Dot (Lovell) Appleton and Billie (Smith) Staby; two from Maryland, Grace (Harding) Ashley and Rosemary (McLean) Krausse; and one from Alabama, Leah (Croom) Jones.

Margaret (Kennette) Davis reported the oldest son, an 18 year old paratrooper. Sophie (Schaefer) Whitworth reported the youngest child, a baby just over a year old. Several "lost" members of the class were found, including Martha Lee (Martin) Powell, who is living in Greensboro now.

Rosemary McLean Krausse and B. J. (Huff) Maner found from the reunion booklet that they live only a few miles apart. What a small world! Rosemary summed up the reunion for all of us: "It's been a glorious day! I'm glad I came!"

Second row: Fran Turner, Nancy (Ouinn) McCoy, Anita (Fletcher) Monroe, Janet (Frederick) Decker, Mary (Towe) Parker, Patty (Vaughn) Gifford, Judy (Rosenstock) Hyman, Reba (Winkler) Ward, Jancy (Olds) Tobier, Marion Osborne, Sara Ann (Hickerson) Stuart, Betty Rae (Rogers) Gibbs, Gail (Bost) Ausbeck, Kitty (Crawley) Young.

ARE THERE WORDS adequate to describe the emotions involved in a twentieth reunion? The strain of committing these feelings to paper is as impossible as describing a spiral stairway while sitting on your hands. Some of us went back because of old roommates' letters, others for sheer loyalty; but no matter the reason, we were there seventy-three strong. (The last word is used advisedly after three days.)

The Class of '41 noisily filled Cotten Dorm and kept the light on and the jabbering constant into the wee hours. For two nights the responsibilities that we left at home were hazy dreams, and we were college girls again . . . and with no assignments! It was a glorious, intangible thrill to be a part of our College which we, perhaps, have learned to love and appreciate even more while we have been out making our adult lives. We were with old dear friends and with wonderful people whom we had not known so well during busy campus days; we now had the time and the joy of knowing well former mere-acquaintances.

We were delightfully pleased with what the College has done and is doing—physically and academically. We had the cobwebs brushed out of our minds by two stimulating new faculty members. We also had the unexpected pleasure of meeting our new chancellor, Dr. Singletary, who flew to Greensboro for the weekend. And we return his compliment: we, too, were impressed.

Perhaps the one thing that made the reunion of the Class of '41 most distinctive is that we were honored by having our classmate, Margaret Coit, reunion with us. Needless to say, we are the only class with a Pulitzer Prize Winner in its proud membership.

And the thought suddenly occurs to me that she should be writing this instead of me! My only excuse for taking this assignment is that smooth-talking Ibby Patten Brafford caught me off-guard, and I did want to find a way to get into print for all the alumnae to read just what they missed.

For those who are afraid of the dirty word forty, let me tell you that the Class of '41 looked smart, well-groomed, and "metraced." We will look the same way five years from now, so just start making plans. You can count on seventy-three who already have promised to come back.

To the absent, we missed you! To those who were there, just spread the good word, and we'll win that attendance cup next time!

Roberta (Dunlap) White

Class of 1951

TO ALL '51ers who missed our Class Reunion:

First of all, we missed you, and you missed a fine time. The final count showed that 142 from the Class of 1951 returned for our tenth reunion—a record number we were told.

Many of us arrived on Friday afternoon. We stayed in Jamison where Miss Cunningham made us feel right at home. Friday night and the early hours of Saturday morning saw us trying to catch up on the past ten years. Almost everyone came equipped with pictures of children, pets, or husbands! But don't think that you were left out completely—much of the conversation centered on those of you who weren't with us. (Better come and speak for yourselves next time!) Some people brought annuals, and we had lots of fun leafing through them and recalling old friends.

How strange (and pleasing!) it was to see no signs of construction work or detours such as we remembered on the campus. The new residence halls, the new McElver Building, and other changes add much to the College.

At the luncheon meeting of the Alumnae Association, we had the opportunity to meet the new chancellor, Dr. Otis Singletary, and he certainly made a fine "first impression." Also at this time five class awards (tin cups) were presented, and the Class of '51 walked off with three of these: the class having the largest number pre-registered for the reunion (127), the class having the largest number of contributors to the Alumnae Fund, and the class contributing the largest amount to the Fund this year. All of this sounded extremely impressive until we heard two other facts: only 68 of us had contributed to the Fund, and this total came to just $388. (Not too bad for '68, but what about the other 398?) Several members indicated their intention to help improve statistics right away.

We had our class meeting on Saturday afternoon with Nancy (Blanton) Smith presiding. As we sat on the floor in the Jamison parlor, it was almost as if we were having a class meeting during our college years—the attendance was just as good—(except for the meeting when we chose our class jackets!)—and the faces looked just the same. Everyone kept saying that she couldn't believe that TEN YEARS had passed so quickly.

Nancy expressed our thanks to Ada Jane (Moore) Sapp and her helpers for the excellent job which they had done on the reunion booklet. There are a few copies left which may be obtained from the Alumnae Office for one dollar each.

It would be impossible to remember all the news which was exchanged over the weekend. Much of it has been included in the booklet. There are only a few items to be added. (Maybe you will send in more information about yourself to the Alumnae Office if you didn't get to answer the questionnaire for the booklet.)

Eleanor (Griswold) Rohr has been studying art at UNC this past year and teaching, also. Next fall she plans to teach at North Carolina College in Durham. She has a daughter.

Addie (Williamson) Mann has four sons, she lives in Winston-Salem.

Mary (Black) Preyer lives in New York City where her husband is an artist.

A quick count of the size of families in the class indicated that three children appeared to be the most popular number, with two coming in as a close second. At least four sets of twins have been born to members of the class.

It was announced that our next class reunion will be held in 1968. This is part of a new plan to schedule reunions of classes which were in school together for the same year. Here's hoping that we'll see all of you at the College then.

When I asked one classmate what to write about the reunion, she answered: "Just say that it was great having one day when you had no cooking, laundry, cleaning, shopping, or anything else to do!!!"

Looking forward to seeing you in 1968! Best wishes.

Jaylee (Montague) Burley

Class of 1956

'56 CAME BACK "well-preserved" for our Fifth Reunion! None of us had aged a bit. It was just as if someone had turned the clock back for us. (We guessed we'd better enjoy it now as future reunions may prove to be different!)

Although we were not great in numbers, we were still mighty in spirit. We enjoyed many good activities planned for us: a luncheon in modernized Spencer Dining Hall, the Alumnae Supper, and two very stimulating lectures by Mr. Randall Jarrell and Dr. Jordan Kurland.

Our most enjoyable moments were spent in "spur-of-the-moment" get-togethers and in "inspection tours" of all the changes Woman's College "hath wrought" since 1956. (We really can't imagine what it must be like to take a second semester final exam in air-conditioned McIver Building! However, we did experience the pleasure of "whizzing" from the back of the Library to West Market Street on a wide, two-way street!)

Our informal class meeting in Cotten Hall parlor brought us news of each other and our growing families. We decided that the Class of '56 has undertaken to help out the Woman's College Class of '76 . . . sons far outnumber daughters as far as we know! And did you know that all the wonderful pictures brought with us show some mighty pretty and handsome children? Of course!

We discussed the possibility of having more '56 news in THE ALUMNAE NEWS. We agreed that our section in the magazine has been pretty sparse; however, this reunion is going to help us get together a sizeable report for the next issue. (All of us "reunioners" might add that we hope you'll help us contribute to the Alumnae Fund and then you won't miss out on any class "scoops"!)

Our picture will show you who was present . . . just so we won't leave out our camera-shy members. Helen (Pate) Williams and Sally (Scott) Bost were present, too. We also had greetings from classmates "in absentia" . . . Jane (Deans) Ferguson in Schenectady, New York; Anne (Buie) Butler in Washington, D. C.; and Betty (Caton) Sams in Phoenix, Arizona.

We would like to give you news of everyone present, but we'll have to save that for the next issue of THE NEWS. We really had a wonderful reunion, and we're sorry all of you couldn't enjoy it with us. Hope to see you at the 10th! Best wishes to all!

Faculty

Dr. Albert F. Thiel

DR. THIEL died on April 28th after four years of declining health. After his retirement in 1956, he had continued to live in his McIver Street home with "the field trip and picnic" backyard which borders on Peabody Park.

A native of Minnesota, he came to Greensboro in 1931 to join the faculty of the Woman's College. He had been thrice graduated: the University of Minnesota (bachelor of arts), the University of Nebraska (master's), and the University of Chicago (doctorate). And among the positions which he had held prior to coming to Greensboro was that of pathologist for the United States Department of Agriculture, assigned to investigate cereal rusts.

During his twenty-five years of teaching botany at the Woman's College, he conducted research and botanical investigations, the results of which were published regularly.

He was a member of Sigma Psi fraternity, the Botanical Society of America, and the Association of the Southeastern Botanical Society.

Dr. Thiel was a member of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, and he served the congregation as an elder. He was a past president of the Greensboro Torch Club International.

His survivors include Mrs. Thiel; a son, Goodrich, who lives in Marietta, Georgia; a brother in California; and three sisters in Minnesota.

Elizabeth (Hankins) Clarke, who died in Jacksonville, Florida, on March 20, was memorialized in an article in the May 25th issue of the North Carolina Christian Advocate. After her graduation in 1900, she was associated with the schools in Wilmington, first teaching and later serving as principal. A tireless worker in her church, she once announced that "the Church duties and the teaching duties combined were too much for me, so I gave up teaching." Outstanding were her contributions as long-time teacher of the Sunday School Beginners Class and as president for 8 years and district secretary for 7 years of the Woman's Missionary Society. Even though she had been paralyzed for 2½ years, Bessie moved to Jacksonville in 1960 with her daughter, Elizabeth Ray, an employee of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad. In addition to her daughter, she is survived by her sister, Ida Hankins '03 of Wilmington.

Miriam MacFadyen is a resident of The Presbyterian Home, High Point.

Emma Lewis (Speight) Morris has a near perfect record in attending commencement at Woman's College. She attended commencement this year, but not here. Her granddaughter, Nancy, was graduated from Hollins College with a major in economics and minor in math, and of course Grandmother Morris was present to share this occasion. Following the exercises, Emma Lewis accompanied Nancy on a trip to Europe.

"WE HAD SUCH FUN at the reunion on campus last year that we decided to have an annual gathering instead of waiting for our next official reunion (our FIFTIETH)." That's how president Edith Haight explained the June 13th reunion of the Class of 1915. Striving for geographical fairness, the group, which had met previously in the western and central parts of the State, accepted the invitation of their "eastern contingent" (Ernestine Cherry, Belle Walters Griffin, Susie Rankin Fountain, Helen Hunt Parham, and Julia Bryan Futrell), and met in Rocky Mount. They (the hostesses listed above, the west western group listed below, and Hallie (Beavers) Allred, Gertrude Caraway, and Mazie (Kirkpatrick) Gainey had lunch at the Carlton House and tea at Susie Fountain's. The next day they journeyed to New Bern for a tour of Tryon Palace and lunch as Gertrude Caraway's guests. The four who traveled from the West (Martha Decker Kanipe, Vonnie McLean Hipps, Ethel Thomas Abernathy, and Edith Haight) took a meandering route both to and from the reunion and managed to see seven of their classmates who could not go to Rocky Mount, to have telephone conversations with four others, and to leave messages for three more who were away from home. Next year's invitation has already been issued: the '15ers will go WEST . . . to Lake Junaluska.

Fudge Roll

THE FOLKS who have been fortunate enough to stop by the Alumnae Office when there was still some of Mrs. Dennis G. Brummitt's annual gift Fudge Roll have suggested that we pass along the recipe. Here's how Mrs. Brummitt "stirs up" the delicacy which she first read about in the News and Observer: "Stir together in the top of a double boiler: one 6 oz. package of chocolate bits, one cup nuts, one cup raisins, 18 marshmallows, four tbs. of milk, and a small pinch of salt. Cook over hot water for maybe 20 minutes or until all ingredients are well mixed. Stir when you pass the stove or when you think of it. Stir in about a half tsp. of vanilla the last thing. Pour the mixture out on a cookie sheet covered with sandwich paper and let stand in a cool place until you can roll it up like a jelly-roll. Roll in powdered sugar (or cocoanut)."

Page (Coleman) Metha recently wrote from 12 A Stanvac Nagar, Chembur, Bombay 71, India: "The children and I are vacationing with my husband's parents in a house by the sea. It is a quiet spot, very much out of the way, and in anticipation of getting lots of things done, I brought tons of letters to be answered, my sewing machine, half a dozen books and so forth. But we have spent most of the time going around sightseeing at other so-called 'quiet spots,' and have had no time to get anything done! As is usual with sightseeing in India, what we have seen is a mixture of the very old and the very new. Everything from a temple 5000 years old which has been twice submerged in the sea, to the latest improvements in the community development projects round about—electric pumps, new schools, outboard motors on the fisherman's boats, a windmill water pump and all sorts of small-scale home industries. Each development block has 50 villages and each village is administered by an elected body of five. All changes are brought about slowly, by the democratic process, by the people themselves, and thus should be lasting in effect. We return to Bombay after a visit to the Cir forest to see lions in their natural habitat, the last such spot in India. School begins again on June 12th."

- Saturday, August 19th, has been designated as CONSOLIDATED UNIVERSITY DAY at The Lost Colony in Manteo. Our day will be a part of "Virginia Dare Weekend," and the 19th's evening performance will be dedicated to the memory of Mr. Billy Carmichael. At noon on that day there will be a special Consolidated University luncheon at the Carolinian Hotel in Nags Head, and Governor Sanford has tentatively committed himself as luncheon speaker. Our new Chancellor Singletary is planning to represent us officially for the day. Special, detailed information will be mailed to many of you in the eastern part of the State, but we are all invited. This will be an especially good time for University alumni/ae to plan a trip to Manteo. You who aren't among our eastern dwellers and who are interested may receive the detailed information by writing either to the Alumnae Office or to Mr. J. Sib Dorton, Jr., General Manager, The Lost Colony, Manteo, North Carolina.
